

Taking Charge: Women and Leadership at Emory

What do women in higher education need to know in order to succeed?

An exciting program called “Taking Charge: Women and Leadership at Emory” answers this question! Taught by leaders from across campus, “Taking Charge” is based, in part, upon some of the best practices of the HERS Institute for Women in Higher Education.

In the 2011-12 series, Emory/HERS alumnae and other University leaders will offer their insights and perspectives on issues in higher education and professional development.

“Taking Charge” resumes with new programs in December 2011. It is free of charge and open to all women of the Emory community. For more information, please contact Katherine Brokaw at kbrokaw@emory.edu.

“Taking Charge” will meet during the 2011-12 academic year in conjunction with monthly meetings of the President’s Commission on the Status of Women (PCSW).

Fall Semester

1st Session: December 15, 2011 (4:30 PM-6:00 PM)

“Structures & Cultures of the University”

Featured Speakers: Dr. Joanne Brzinski and Dr. Rosemary Magee

Spring Semester

2nd Session: January 19, 2012 (4:30 PM-6:00 PM)

“How to Get Where You’re Going:
Careers, Networks, Mentors, and Goals”

Featured Speaker: Janis Ashkin

Moderators: Donna Wong and Betty Willis

3rd Session: March 15, 2012 (4:30 PM-6:00 PM)

“The Future of Emory: Dollars and Sense”

Featured Speaker: Mike Mandl

4th Session: April 19, 2012 (4:30 PM-6:00 PM)

“It Takes a Village: Collaborations and Coalitions”

Location for all sessions: Jones Room, Woodruff Library